civil society. It would powerfully contribute to strengthening citizen engagement and empowering citizens and civil society to help deliver the world we want and the UN we need.

The precedent of Kofi Annan's Assistant Secretary-General for External Relations – a position that existed until 2003 – oversight.

This proposal would mark a step towards improved relations between our global system and the people it was set up to serve.

There is far more political will to make this happen than there has been at any time since 2003. Our mapping has revealed a broad but perhaps not well-unified group of states, of the world, therefore enabling the kind of working in partnership that will be required to achieve the SDGs.

the 2019 UNA-UK - Chatham House joint conference on Kofi Annan's legacy and the 2020 Pyeongchang Peace Conference. The Secretary-General's 2020 Call to Action on human rights pledged "creating avenues for civil society participation".

There is an urgent need to mobilise non-traditional voices in support of this proposal, in particular by reaching out to UN groups like the Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) and the G77, and making the case to them that –far from being a threat –this is a means for broadening the range of stakeholders the UN consults with beyond the WEOG affiliated usual suspects, and therefore a way of getting less visible issues –particularly the development agenda as seen from the perspective of developing countries –raised in priority in New York.
